In New York City, hotter temps a deadly matter

Climate change. The new study says that warmer temperatures will cause more heat-related deaths.

Though New Yorkers wouldn't know it from the damp Memorial Day weekend, summer heat in Manhattan could be turning deadly, according to a study out of Columbia University.

Researchers at the university's Earth Institute and the Mailman School of Public Health are warning that deaths in Manhattan linked to warmer temperatures due to global warming may result in a 20 percent increase in temperature-related deaths by the 2020s.

In some worst-case scenarios, according to the Earth Institute, the rate of heat-related deaths could rise by 90 percent by the 2080s.

"This serves as a reminder that heat events are one of the greatest hazards faced by urban populations around the globe," Earth Institute climate scientist Radley Horton said.

2012 was apparently the warmest year on record in Manhattan. While projections for the future vary, the study anticipates steep average increases: 3.3 to 4.2 degrees Fahrenheit by the 2050s, and 4.3 to 7.1 degrees by the 2080s.

The Earth Institute noted that New York already takes steps to mitigate warming by planting trees, making roofs reflective and opening cooling centers in the summer where people can seek refuge.

Tougher Statue security is needed

The NYPD wants a security point at Battery Park. / GETTY IMAGES

Police Commissioner Ray Kelly and Senator Chuck Schumer called on the National Parks Service on Monday to create a security station at Battery Park to screen visitors before they board a ferry to the Statue of Liberty.

The NYPD has previously disagreed with the Park Service's decision not to have screening prior to passengers' boarding of the ferry at Battery Park, and their assertion that having screening at the station at Ellis Island is adequate.

Earlier this month Kelly wrote a letter to Sally Jewell, Secretary of the Department of the Interior.

"Al Qaeda and those who shares its violent jihadist ideology ... have long shown an interest in targets that represent our country," Kelly said.

Kelly insisted that a staffed screening area would prevent crowding and not interfere with ticket sales.

"I know the NPS cares deeply about the monument and its visitors," Schumer said, "but in this case I think they've made a mistake and should rethink this policy change."

Hate crime

Another gay man attacked in Midtown

In yet another apparent hate crime in Manhattan, a gay man was attacked near Times Square, cops said.

Police were called to the corner of 42nd Street and Ninth Avenue on Saturday morning. They arrived to find a 27-year-old man who reported that he had been attacked.

The victim was walking with a friend when they were approached by a group of men. One of the men in the group reportedly said anti-gay remarks and then punched the victim.

After a search, officers found the suspect. The suspect has not yet been arrested.

Hospitals say bumper crop of 'Sandy babies' on way

NYC is expecting in a boom in babies born from Sandy. / GETTY IMAGES

New parents. Some area hospitals are expecting a baby bonanza after superstorm Sandy.

The Times credited "inoperable" elevators and "deluged" lobbies as part of the reason for the impending baby boom.

The Times cited a sociological study taken in rural India that reportedly found that with increased access to electricity, birth rates dropped. The same report notes that "no statistically sound effect on births was found after the 1965 power failure in the Northeast," and that there was actually a drop in the birth rate from the year after the 2003 black out that knocked out power in the city for days. The Journal of Population Economics also reportedly found that there was an uptick in births after minor storms, but that there was the opposite following much bigger storms like Sandy.

New York residents will soon be seeing a lot of new babies on city streets. Nine months after superstorm Sandy left many in the tri-state area cooped up and without power, area hospitals are preparing for a deluge of "Sandy babies," the New York Times reported this weekend.

One expectant mother, Meaghan Murphy, explained to the Times that "with no power, no TV, no lights, even without that much food, there was not much else to do."

Murphy apparently added that her husband, Patrick, "is so handsome."

"I couldn't resist," she told the Times.

Summer babies

Local hospitals are reportedly readying their staff for an increase in the number of births that will take place in mid-summer, which would be approximately nine months after Sandy.

- Birth rates in New York apparently typically peak in July, but the director of the division of gynecology at St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital Center, Jacques Moritz, reportedly told the Times that they expect to see an increase of 10 to 20 percent at the end of July, compared to the same period last year.

- New York-Presbyterian Hospital/Weill Cornell Medical Center chief of obstetrics Amos Drunebaum reportedly said that his hospital expects an even greater increase from the year before, estimating a 20 to 30 percent rise in the number of births.
- A patient of Grunebaum's who was having trouble conceiving a second child is now pregnant, after having sex three times in one day during the storm.

Gun violence. Man killed in Brooklyn nightclub shooting

A man is dead and a woman wounded after a shooting erupted outside a nightclub in Brooklyn early Monday morning.

The man, 31, and the woman, 26, were shot in front of 1552 Ralph Ave. in Canarsie at 2:15 a.m., police said.

Initially cops said the woman, who sustained a gunshot wound to her knee, was taken to Brookdale Hospital in stable condition. However, Police Commissioner Ray Kelly later reported that the woman was still at the hospital in critical condition.

The man had been shot several times, Kelly said. He was taken to Kings County Hospital and pronounced dead on arrival.

Kelly said that several shell casings were found at the scene.

A 46-year-old Brooklyn man has been arrested in connection with the murder of a man who disappeared in September and whose body was found upstate a month later.

Charles Butler, 56, was last seen in Brighton Beach on Sept. 19, cops said. Police discovered a man's body on Oct. 15 in Port Jervis, N.Y., and later identified the body as Butler.

Mikhail Chernyaev is charged with second-degree murder. Butler was the boyfriend of Chernyaev's ex-girlfriend, The New York Post reports.

Chernyaev was brought in and reportedly confessed after a long police interview, the Post reports.

Cuomo's Weiner quote was only in jest

Election 2013. The governor says that he has no position on the race.

The comment made by Gov. Andrew Cuomo about Anthony Weiner's mayoral run that swarmed news reports last week was just a joke, a Cuomo administration official said.

"The remark was made in jest. As the governor has said many times, he has no plan to endorse in this year's mayoral primary," said the official, who declined to be identified, according to The New York Times.

The response was made after The Syracuse

Post-Standard published a transcript of an interview between the governor and Syracuse Media Group Chairman Stephen Rogers:

"So if Anthony Weiner wants to run for mayor, he can run for mayor?" Cuomo was asked.

"He runs? He runs."
"And if we elect him?"
"Shame on us," Cuomo said.

When asked again about Weiner and his chances of winning the mayoral race at a recent appearance, Cuomo replied, "I don't have an official position on the mayor's race, and I'm going to leave it at that."

Memorial Day. Obama pays tribute to fallen during ceremony

President Barack Obama paid tribute to fallen men and women of the U.S. armed services during a Memorial Day ceremony in which he reminded Americans that the country was still at war.

During a solemn visit to Arlington National Cemetery, the resting ground for many military casualties, Obama noted in remarks to visitors that next year would mark the last Memorial Day of the U.S. war in Afghanistan.

"But even as we turn the page on a decade of conflict, even as we look forward, let us never forget, as we gather here today, that our nation is

US urges garment buyers to stay engaged with Bangladesh

Safety. A series of deadly incidents at factories in Bangladesh has focused global attention on safety in the industry.

International garment buyers, particularly those in the United States, have a crucial role to play in ensuring the safety of Bangladesh's garment workers, a senior government official said yesterday.

"On the labor issue, absolutely — buyers have a critical role, and they must be engaged," U.S. Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs Wendy R. Sherman told a news conference in Dhaka, the Bangladeshi capital.

ment factories after the April 24 collapse of the Rana Plaza building in a Dhaka suburb.

Their task is made tougher by a lack of robust safety rules, a severe shortage of trained building inspectors and equipment needed to make proper safety assessments, and widespread concern about corruption. Sherman said foreign companies should not give up on Bangladesh.

"We are encouraging international investors not to turn their back on Bangladesh, because the solution is reform, not withdrawal," she said. REUTERS

"Ultimately, success will depend on the will and commitment of industry, government, civil society and everyday Bangladeshis to come together to change the culture of workplace safety and worker rights in Bangladesh," she added. REUTERS

New tech palaces: visionary HQs, or cursed trophies?

A model of Frank Gehry's new Facebook headquarters. / FACEBOOK

Campus. Tech companies construct their own buildings that match the collaborative way they work.

While much of corporate America is retrenching on the real estate front, the four most influential technology companies in America are each planning headquarters that could win a Pritzker Architecture Prize for hubris.

Amazon.com on Friday revealed plans for three verdant bubbles in downtown Seattle, joining Apple's circular "spaceship," Facebook's Frank Gehry-designed open-office complex and a new Googleplex on the list of planned trophy offices.

"It signals a desire, a statement, to say that we're special, we're different. We have changed the world and we are going to continue to change it," said Margaret O'Mara, associate professor of history at the University of Washington, who has written about the building of Silicon Valley.

"It's also a reflection of robust bank accounts. They have a lot of cash."

Historically, however, when a company becomes preoccupied with the grandeur of its premises, it often signals a high point in its fortunes. These fantastical buildings may end up as little more than costly monuments to vanity and a loss of focus on the core business that made for success in the first place.

"I've been thinking the Apple spaceship is going to get nicknamed the 'Death Star' because the project is so big and the timing is so bad," said hedge fund manager Jeff Matthews of Ram Partners. The building is coming to fruition just as Apple's product cycles may be maturing, he explained. "It is such a classic contrary indicator that you just get the shakes." He no longer holds Apple stock. REUTERS

Building a future

Elite design projects for tech companies

Amazon's design, presented to Seattle city planners last week, includes three steel and glass spheres almost 100 feet high, which will serve as the centerpiece for three new skyscrapers that will house a rapidly growing workforce in downtown Seattle.

Google Inc. has outgrown its original headquarters in Silicon Valley's Mountain View and is planning to build a 1.1 million square foot Googleplex nearby.

Called Bay View, it will have nine rectangular buildings, horizontally bent, with living roofs surrounded by courtyards and connected by bridges. No employee will be more than a two-and-a-half-minute walk away from any colleague, a design aimed at encouraging collaboration. A Google spokeswoman declined further comment.

Terrorism

U.N. rights chief says anti-terror measures can backfire

United Nations human rights chief Navi Pillay told governments yesterday that trying to fight terrorism by limiting personal freedoms and mistreating suspects could only worsen the problem.

She spoke as Britain and France were considering tightening anti-terror laws and surveillance after the killings of two soldiers in London and Paris, and as U.S. President Barack Obama renewed his efforts to close the Guantanamo prison camp in Cuba.

Pillay said she had received allegations of "very grave violations of human rights that have taken place in the context of counterterrorist and counterinsurgency operations."

Rigby. The soldier was hacked to death in south London by two men who said they killed him in the name of Islam.

Around a thousand far-right protesters shouting "Muslim killers, off our streets" marched through central London yesterday against a backdrop of swelling anti-Muslim feeling following the killing of a British soldier last week.

In a tense but largely peaceful demonstration, supporters of the far-right English Defence League rallied outside Prime Minister David Cameron's residence waving placards and shouting anti-Islamic obscenities.

"Islamic extremism is probably the No. 1 threat to Britain," said Ben Gates, a protester. Other demonstrators chanted, "Muslim bombers off our streets."

Another protester, Samuel Hames, said of Rigby: "He survived his tour of foreign lands and [came] home to his family — and what happened to him is disgusting."

Nearly 2,000 people marched at a similar demonstration in the northern city of Newcastle on Saturday. Two men were arrested overnight for throwing firebombs at an Islamic cultural center in Grimsby, in northeast England. Similar attacks were recorded last week.

As anti-racist groups warned that there could be more reprisals, Cameron came under intense pressure for going on vacation. Pictures of him relaxing in Ibiza prompted newspapers to question his leadership at a time of unease. REUTERS

Seventy killed in wave of Baghdad bombings

Surge. Attacks were targeted primarily in Shi'ite areas across the city.

More than 70 people were killed in a wave of bombings in markets in Shi'ite neighborhoods across Baghdad yesterday in worsening sectarian violence in Iraq.

No group claimed responsibility for the blasts. But Sunni Muslim Islamist insurgents and al-Qaeda's Iraqi wing have increased attacks since the beginning of the year and often target Shi'ite districts.

More than a dozen blasts tore into markets and shopping areas in districts across the Iraqi capital, including twin bombs just several hundred meters apart that killed at least 13 people in the capital's Sadr City area, police and hospital officials said.

"A driver hit another car and left, pretending to bring traffic police. Another car rushed to take him away and right after his car exploded among people who had gathered to see what was happening," said bystander Hassan Kadhim. "People were shouting for help, and blood covered their faces."

Tensions between the Shi'ite leadership and the Sunni Muslim minority are at their worst since U.S. troops left in 2011, and the conflict in Syria is straining Iraq's fragile communal balance. REUTERS

Write like an Egyptian. Chinese teen defaces 3.5K-year-old temple

On the east bank of the Nile River sits an ancient Egyptian temple named Luxor. It's home to six temples founded nearly 3,500 years ago. And now, one of the temple's stone sculptures reads "Ding Jinhao was here." Ding Jinhao is a teenage Chinese tourist who was visiting the temple with his parents and allegedly carved his name into a temple wall, according to a CNN report. Another Chinese tourist took a picture of the graffiti and posted it on Weibo. According to CNN's report, the original photo was re-posted close to 100,000 times before garnering worldwide attention. Officials apparently tried cleaning up the etching, but no water can be used on the centuries-old wall.

Summer in the City is Summer at Cooper Union

Whatever you're going to do this summer, include The Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art in your plans. You can learn a new skill or hone an old one, add to your professional accomplishments, or just have fun. Among our outstanding summer courses are various levels of drawing, painting, and photography. You can take courses in collage, mixed media, writing and book arts. If you are attracted to digital media, you can learn Photoshop, take a workshop on Easy Websites for Artists, investigate Physical Computing with Arduino or learn to Build Apps for Digital Media. Whatever course you take, you'll work with a faculty of accomplished professionals and teachers.

Professionals in various fields who want to investigate new areas or advance skills they already practice should take a look at our Professional Development Certificates. These Certificates include the rapidly growing field of Digital Representation and Fabrication (3-D printing, laser cutting and CNC milling.) Our graduate Certificate in Typeface Design is the only one in North America. Of course, you can take individual courses in the Certificate programs without signing up for the whole Certificate.

Whatever course you take, you'll work with a faculty of accomplished professionals and teachers. Information is available at 212-353-4195 or at cooperunion.augustsoft.net The Cooper Union is easy to reach by subway: the 6 train stops right at Astor Place, R and W trains stop at 8th Street, one block away.

What to wear under that boring graduation gown

Style. You won't sweat the giant robe when you look good underneath it.

Graduation gowns are tough to pull off. They're not exactly flattering, what with their tablecloth-like shape and plastic-y material. Make sure you rock something sassy under that humdrum cloak, and you'll be set for post-commencement festivities. You can go for fancy and frilly or vintage and sweet, but either way, your look will have graduated from boring to best in show.

David's Bridal has several options if you're opting for a celebratory new dress. Jamie Bradford, the assistant manager at David's

A retro sundress will ensure that you stay cool under all that synthetic fabric. / SAZZ VINTAGE

Bridal in Plymouth Meeting, says that dresses with pockets are a huge trend right now. "The pockets work well for carrying lip gloss, camera or [a] phone," says Bradford. A little extra bulk in the pockets will hardly be noticeable under all that polyester regalia.

Bradford also sees sleek dresses becoming a staple of graduation season. "You don't want something too bulky under the gown. It'll look weird in pictures." Opt for a streamlined silhouette instead.

Similarly, Melissa Granum, manager of Philadelphia's Sazz Vintage, says, "Try to avoid puffy sleeves, as they will cause the gown to hang [funnily] on the shoulder." But don't let that stop you from going retro with your outfit.

"Sleeveless dresses, such as 1950s cotton day dresses and 1960s shift dresses, work especially well," adds Granum. "They are easily dressed up or down and won't be too warm under the gown."

Commencement may seem to drag on, but the day flies by. You may not have extra time afterward, so it's better to wear something versatile. "Some of the girls are really taking it to the next level," says Bradford. "They're finding dresses that can transition easily for parties and dinners. Sometimes you don't have time to change out of what you're wearing." Just remember, as Granum and Bradford both point out, comfort is key. If you find a dress that you can sit in all day, you're already well on your way.

A dress with a sleek silhouette won't be bulky under your graduation gown, and will look great for any post-graduation festivities.

THE DIVISION OF GRADUATE STUDIES

The Rothberg International School (RIS) offers programs designed for students seeking high standards of learning and research at the Hebrew University. The programs are offered in conjunction with various departments in the faculties of Humanities, Social Sciences, Law and Dental Medicine, as well as the School of Social Work and Social Welfare. Courses are taught in English by members of the Hebrew University faculty and distinguished visitors. In the framework of the Division, degree and non-degree programs are offered. Students may set up tutorials, internships, special projects, and/or pursue their own research under the guidance and supervision of Hebrew University faculty.

DIVISION OF UNDERGRADUATE STUDIES

The Division of Undergraduate Studies is the oldest and largest academic study abroad program in Israel. Students accepted into our program have the opportunity to study and experience Israel in a unique way in Jerusalem. All classes are fully accredited and are taught in English. Students participate in a comprehensive program of extracurricular activities, including tours in Jerusalem and throughout the country.

Programs are also available for first-year students (Freshman Year/GAP), as well as more advanced undergraduates. In addition to the large variety of courses in Religious, Israel and Middle Eastern Studies, special academic tracks and programs are available in Arts, Arabic Immersion, Business, Brain and Behavioral Sciences, Dynamics of the Middle East: Politics and Society (DOME), Journalism and Media in Contemporary Israel, Judaism and Christianity in Late Antiquity, Psychology, Environmental Studies, Dance and Music. Exceptional students are invited to apply to our Spring in Jerusalem-Honors Program.

DEPARTMENT OF SUMMER COURSES AND SPECIAL PROGRAMS

The Department of Summer Courses and Special Programs offers short-term study abroad programs that enable students to combine an enriching academic experience with the opportunity to live and breathe the subject matter. For over thirty years, the Department has offered stimulating, accredited summer courses to undergraduate and graduate students, as well as mature learners with academic backgrounds.

Various stimulating co-curricular and extracurricular activities, seminars, and trips complement these courses, providing students with an enriching social and academic experience that extends beyond the limits of the classroom.

SPECIAL PROGRAMS

The Department of Special Programs specializes in developing, implementing and hosting short-term academic programs for students, adults and professional groups in conjunction with universities, institutions, and organizations from around the world. These tailor-made programs vary in duration, intensity, and timeline, and generally consist of lectures, seminars, and accompanying field study trips throughout Israel.

HEBREW LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT

The Division of Hebrew Language Instruction offers modern Hebrew language courses on all levels. Emphasis is placed on internalizing the language and practical usage. Teaching methods range from traditional classroom instruction and conversation practice to language laboratory sessions that utilize audio and video cassettes, computers and new multimedia educational aids.

The School offers intensive Modern Hebrew language courses during the summer and winter (Ulpanim) as well as Hebrew language courses and electives during the academic year. The Division also runs a center for training teachers of Hebrew as a second language.

PREPARATORY PROGRAM-MECHINA

The Mechina provides students with the skills and instruction to gain admission to an Institution of Higher Learning in Israel. Learn more about the Mechina and the great opportunities offered to Mechina students.

Holders of a high school diploma who are qualified to begin university studies in their home country can apply. Students are not required to have completed the SATs, psychometric exam, or any standardized tests prior to applying.

Making peace with education

David J. Smith, a community college peacebuilding advocate, addresses students. / PROVIDED

Interview. A new book seeks to teach peace to students.

David J. Smith may be the foremost proponent of peacebuilding education in community colleges. A longtime professor at Harford Community College in Maryland, he edited the first peace studies book intended specifically for junior college instructors: "Peacebuilding in Community Colleges: A Teaching Resource."

How many peacebuilding courses are taught in community colleges?

In 2005, there were only four or five community colleges that had peace studies or conflict-resolution degree programs. Today, there are between 20 and 30. So it's a slow trend, but it's growing.

Why is it important to teach peacebuilding?

Nearly 50 percent of all undergrads in the U.S. are in a community college. These institutions are some of the most diverse and most immigrant-friendly in the U.S. We need to take this opportunity to address global issues related to conflict and violence. Also, the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan have impacted community colleges more than any other sector of higher education. Veterans have experiences that we need to learn from, and they're often seeking the means to better understand those experiences themselves.

Are these skills important for job preparation?

Many skills necessary for success in the workplace are conflict-resolution-based. There's a growing body of research indicating that people often fail at work because they don't know how to deal with conflict, and they don't have the skills to create a productive conversation with coworkers.

Why focus on community colleges?

About half of students at community colleges won't transfer. They get two-year degrees and go right to work. That's the core of American society: PTA leaders, cops, business leaders, nurses, accountants, etcetera.

Scarlett Johansson as Hillary Clinton?

The casting call to portray Hillary Rodham Clinton in a new biopic about her life is looking pretty ferocious (and attractive). Reese Witherspoon, Scarlett Johansson, Amanda Seyfried and Jessica Chastain are among the actresses vying to play the secretary of state in "Rodham," a new film that will focus on the early years of Clinton's marriage and her time as a 20-something lawyer in Washington, D.C..

"They're all wonderful actresses," director James Ponsoldt told The Independent. "We're very fortunate that a lot of really great actors are interested in playing these roles. ...You don't find people who question the quality of her intelligence or her drive," he continued. "I want a wonderful actress who could embody that."

Not to knock Clinton's looks (I think she is rather regal-looking) but this is probably the first time Scarlett Johansson and Hillary Clinton have been mentioned in relation to one another ... ever.

Talking points

Polanski needs a meeting with Steinem, stat

Roman Polanski isn't necessarily a fan of birth control, complaining during a press conference in Cannes for his new film, "Venus in Fur," that the Pill has had a "masculinizing" effect on women. The 79-year-old director says the Pill has "changed the place of women in our times." He also gripes that moves toward gender equality are having a negative impact on chivalry, noting that "offering flowers to a lady" has now become "indecent."

Pattinson moves back

Robert Pattinson spent Memorial Day weekend moving back into his own home, a Spanish-style villa similar to ex-girlfriend Kristen Stewart's and only a few miles away, according to TMZ. Stewart, meanwhile, was caught off-guard by a swarm of paparazzi in a parking garage this weekend and responded with a pair of middle fingers.

Aaron Paul gushes about new wife

"Breaking Bad" star Aaron Paul is the most romantic actor out there — at least on social media. Before he walked down the aisle with his fiancée Lauren Parsekian on Sunday in Malibu, he tweeted their photo, saying: "And so it begins." And on the morning after, he Instagrammed a picture of the two of them from their wedding night with this promise: "A day will never go by without me reminding you how special you are. Thanks for last night my pretty little bird."

Where is Amanda Bynes' family?

It was all fun and games with Amanda Bynes until she showed up to her court hearing in this wig. That wig is a cry for help. So what's going on? The more apt question is: What isn't?

This Memorial Day weekend was such a busy one for the star, it's hard to keep all of the crazy straight. She first showed up in court after being arrested for throwing a bong out of her apartment. She then spent the weekend tweeting various allegations that the NYPD sexually assaulted her. She peppered this with tweets to Rihanna with, "Chris Brown beat you because you're not pretty enough." On Monday, she looped back around to her NYPD allegations, stating that she is suing them for various things, including locking her up overnight "for coming home after a facial and working out with my trainer like the good girl that I am." She concluded by telling us to anticipate another nose job and her new career "as a singer/rapper!"

Some major 'Development' on Netflix

Welcome back.

Upon the Bluth family's return this past weekend, cast members discuss plots and jokes so intricate that even they didn't get them right away.

Although it's hard to pinpoint precisely why "Arrested Development" failed to connect with many viewers during its initial three-season, 53-episode run, it seems likely that one reason was the show's narrative density. Now that the show is finally back, creator Mitch Hurwitz spared no effort in creating 15 new episodes that are as complex and layered as their predecessors. Even though audiences can enjoy the luxury of sorting through them all at once thanks to their simultaneous release on Netflix this past weekend, the show's cast is quick to admit that even they occasionally struggled to wrap their heads around it.

Michael Cera, who rejoined the show's fourth season as a co-star as well as a writer says, "There was one scene that was like a five-page scene in the computer lab, and different sections of this scene would appear in different episodes. So you'd be actually having to deliver a line that made sense in multiple, different contexts that actually play against each other, and we'd have to deliver it in a way that tries to work for all three of those. And then you'd see an episode and you have different information and it means something totally different. That was really confusing."

Portia de Rossi, who plays the well-intentioned sister Lindsay, says there's a luxury of having all of the

You know them as Tobias, George Michael, Maeby, Lucille, Michael and Lindsay, respectively, but they're really David Cross, Michael Cera, Alia Shawkat, Jessica Walter, Jason Bateman and Portia de Rossi.

Bateman abides

... and the one son who had no choice but to keep them all together

Jason Bateman remains a unifying presence, despite the fact that only two of the episodes focus on his character Michael's peccadilloes. He says the Netflix episodes allowed Hurwitz more freedom.

"I hope that's appreciated by the few people who do love the show," he says diplomatically. "They seem to be a group who likes things somewhat challenging. And the fact that Netflix affords [Mitch] the opportunity to have these stories go out over 15 different episodes, that are so intertwined that the same scene will repeat, from different angles, in multiple episodes, is a really unique and exciting thing to be a part of, in working with his complexity and with Netflix's distribution platform."

shows available at once: "We've got a little bit more time to tell the story."

David Cross, who plays Lindsay's feckless husband Tobias, says that audiences will love that experience, but he warns that it may take a little getting used to.

"You're going to realize, 'There's a structure to this that I wasn't aware of when I started watching.' That's going to make everybody triple-excited, and there's going to be a sense of discovery to it that I think will be really exciting, and really define what TV can do."

DAN KENNEDY

The host of "The Moth" podcast tries his hand at the great American novel.

SMELLS — AND READS LIKE — 'AMERICAN SPIRIT'

Dan Kennedy is known to legions of fans of "The Moth" as host of their weekly podcast, a medium where truth is held in high regard and fictionalizing is frowned upon. But after a 2008 memoir ("Rock On: An Office Power Ballad") Kennedy is making his first foray into fiction. "American Spirit" follows the 40-something Matthew as his life slowly unravels. Kennedy says he could maybe relate to the character — but just maybe.

Why is the mid-life crisis so fascinating?

I suppose because it really doesn't matter who you are or what you do, when it occurs to you that you may, in the best-case scenario, be at the halfway done with your life, it tends to grab your attention. I guess we never know what the halfway point is. History is full of people who didn't realize they were middle aged at 14, you know? Have I started the interview on a positive note?

How was switching from nonfiction and essays to developing a novel?

I hit a point in writing where I just wasn't fond of dragging friends into it for the sake of a laugh. At a certain point you're having a nice weekend with someone and something weird happens and you can see them thinking: "Don't tell me Shakespeare here is gonna throw me into his next little essay."

Is 40-something Matthew based on anyone?

He's a guy who can't figure out what to do when his job is gone, his marriage is doomed, the money's running out fast, he's drinking in suburban grocery store parking lots, eating hallucinogens and then burning frequent flier miles flying around the world making a bigger mess of things for himself. ... I've, uh, never known anyone like him.

The 'Fast & Furious' franchise still has wheels

Box office. "Fast & Furious 6" sped right past "The Hangover Part III."

"Fast & Furious 6" rang up an estimated $98.5 million in domestic ticket sales from Friday through Sunday and was speeding toward $122.5 million by the end of Memorial Day.

Comedy sequel "The Hangover Part III" brought in $42.4 million from Friday through Sunday, according to studio estimates, and was likely to finish with $64 million through Monday, after a Thursday opening.

Last weekend's box office leader, sci-fi sequel "Star Trek Into Darkness," fell to third place with $38 million through Sunday and was headed toward $48 million through Monday.

Vin Diesel is laughing all the way to the bank. / GETTY IMAGES

The movies charged up the North American box office, putting ticket sales on pace for a Memorial Day weekend record. Receipts for all films could reach $323 million through Monday, according to Hollywood.com, shattering the 2011 record of $276.3 million.

"A perfect storm of hits led to this incredible weekend with going out to the movies proving itself to be the first choice for outside-of-the-home entertainment," said Paul Dergarabedian, president of Hollywood.com's box office division.

"Fast & Furious 6" blew past pre-weekend forecasts for $80 million in domestic sales over four days by nearly 50 percent.

Top earners

- 1 "Fast & Furious 6," $122.5 million
- 2 "The Hangover Part III," $42.4 million
- 3 "Star Trek Into Darkness," $38 million
- 4 "Epic," $34.2 million
- 5 "Iron Man 3," $19.4 million

The new film stars Vin Diesel as Dominic Toretto, a now-retired professional criminal who reunites his crew with U.S. Diplomatic Security Service agent Luke Hobbs, played by Dwayne Johnson. The group works to take down a criminal outfit of mercenary drivers scattered across 12 countries. REUTERS

MARY MURPHY

"So You Think You Can" top this summer show? Ask the judge.

DANCING QUEEN

"So You Think You Can Dance" (Tuesdays at 8 p.m. on Fox) may be in its 10th season, but judge Mary Murphy is having no less fun in her job. The bubbly ballroom pro spoke with us about Season 10 while en route to the airport for a TV appearance, her chatter infused with a hint of Southern twang and that signature gregarious laughter of hers.

The show is almost 10 years old — how does that make you feel?

It went by in a snap. I'm very grateful and really proud of the show and all the dancers that come back. I would say a good half of [this year's contestants] are probably 18. They've just been waiting for the day [they can audition]. So many of them say, "I started when I was 9, dreaming about the day I'd be on 'So You Think You Can Dance.'" It's starting to be like a rite of passage.

Do you stay in touch with any former contestants?

We certainly do. One of our guest judges this year is gonna be tWitch, who was one of our past contestants, and he's engaged to Allison Holker, another one of our contestants. I think they're our first wedding, even though they weren't on the same year — they met each other and did a lot of gigs together and fell in love. It's just the coolest thing. I think one of our executive producers is even gonna be marrying them!

How do you keep the show fresh and exciting after nine seasons?

Leaving the station

Are you sending any contestants on the hot tamale train this season?

Oh, for sure. I put a couple contestants on that train during the auditions, which is rare.

And for the very first time I even [used] a cuss word — and I very rarely cuss. I take that out of my vocabulary, mainly because you're on live TV and you never want to let

As far as any new format twists, they haven't let us know of anything. I do know that they do plan on keeping the two winners this season and that was new last year. We have more new guest judges, which is always fun. Minnie Driver is a new judge this season — she studied dance at the Royal Ballet in England. ... A lot of these people have dance in their background and they love, love, love the show.

Off the set, what's your relationship like with fellow judge Nigel Lythgoe?

Me and Nigel met Prince Charles this year at Buckingham Palace. It was really surreal for me. Nigel's a hard person to get something for, and I know he's really involved with England still — their soccer teams and the BAFTA and everything else — that I just felt really good about saying to him, "Would you like to go to Buckingham Palace and meet Prince Charles?"

Joel McHale often teases you on "The Soup." Does that ever get to you?

I have to say, the first time he did it, it really hurt my feelings. It made me cry. And the next time, he brought me down [to the show], and everybody from the set was running over to me, talking about the contestants and this, that and the other. And he was in makeup and I said, "You know you made me cry a couple weeks ago." And he said, "What? Mary, don't you know I love you and I respect you?" He said, "I love what you guys do on that show, I love your enthusiasm. That's why I brought you here today, because we love you." And so then I was always looking forward to it, and then I just started getting bummed when he wasn't showing me. [Laughs]

Bret Michaels revs up for debut of RV show

Open road. The rockin' reality star wants to pimp your ride.

After decades in the spotlight as a glam metal frontman, 50-year-old rocker reality star Bret Michaels is throwing a new skill into the mix: tricking out RVs and rocking the open road.

For Michaels, RVing is much more than a means of transportation — it's a lifestyle. The rock star holds tight to countless childhood memories in an RV and now spends nine months out of the year on the road, logging millions of miles.

Sunday night, the self-proclaimed "ultimate RV adventurer" debuted a new show on the Travel Channel, "Rock my RV with Bret Michaels." In the 16-episode series, the "Rock of Love" star leads a design team as they transform worn-out, dilapidated RVs into the most luxurious, over-the-top, tricked-out mobile mansions on the road. To get America revved up, the hands-on aficionado has five things he wants you to know about hitting the road in an RV.

This is the kind of scenery that Bret Michaels — whose new show airs Sundays at 9 p.m. on the Travel Channel — is used to. / GETTY IMAGES

They're not just the chariot of choice for retirees

Anyone at any age can rock an RV road trip. "I hope that [the show] shows that the open road is for any generation. My mom and dad were pretty young when they were doing it. It's sort of like the Wild West. You go out there, and it's a great adventure."

Be mindful of the cramped quarters

"When you take a road trip, whether you're in a car or an RV, let me just assure you, you're either going to bond for life and have great memories, or you may possibly never speak to each other again. This is my best advice: You want as much space as you can get. Stop at a place where you can get out of that thing and get away from each other for a little bit. Go out, walk around, hike, stretch out, enjoy the scenery."

Bigger is not better

"If you're going to start RVing, you might want to start with a smaller one and get a good feel of the groove of the road as you're going. It's just like starting out on anything. If you're going to ride a Harley, you don't want to jump on the biggest, heaviest one right away. You graduate up a little bit."

Every RV has its thorn

He takes tricking out your RV seriously

"The first thing I have to do with most of these is look at the structure, the rust factor, what we can and can't do — and most important is weight. You can't put too much weight on this thing. It could be quite dangerous. So it's really a matter of function and fun. I've got to create both. I want it to be fun, but it's got to function, and I want their experience when they leave to be enjoyable. A lot of these RV shows, they build these in a garage, and they make things that could never possibly go down the road. My job is to make it be able to go wherever they want it — go under any bridge, go anywhere they want, any beach, any side of a mountain that they want to go."

MORGAN ROUSSEAU
morgan.rousseau@metro.us

More from Michaels

"Don't be in a rush to get from Point A to Point B. I would not drive super fast. In an RV, you want to get into a little more of a cruise feel, and get a feel of the weight and the wind."

School's out for summer? Uh-oh

Summer vacation.

The summer months can be challenging for any parent. Now just imagine if you had twins.

Jane Roper, the author of the memoir "Double Time: How I Survived — and Mostly Thrived — Through the First Three Years of Mothering Twins," knows how rewarding and challenging the summer months with children can be. And now that her daughters are 6 years old, she has spent many a warm month keeping both of them occupied. "If you've got preschool or school-aged kids like I do, you may be dreading the end of the school year just a teensy bit," she notes. "But fear not: There are plenty of ways to retain your sanity and have fun in the process." Roper shared her tips with Metro.

Just add water

Hot, humid weather

makes my children miserable, which in turn makes me miserable. When temperatures soar, we hit parks and playgrounds with water spray[s] or wading areas. When the girls were younger, I'd

Advice

Let them be bored

"Resist the urge to schedule every last minute," advises Roper. "When my kids complain that they're bored, I say, 'Well, it's OK to be bored.' Roper says that then, her girls "usually come up with some amazingly creative game or activity on their own." Oh, and keep the big picture in mind: "Other times, they just lie on the couch like giant throw pillows for a while. Either way, you get a break and they survive. And it's all about survival, right?"

give them bowls, spoons and measuring cups, and let them "cook" with ice. And if all else fails, there's always ice cream.

your own summer reading. Note: The "50 Shades" trilogy is probably not advisable. ("What's your book about, Mommy?")

Make them read

Almost every public library has some kind of summer reading program — even for the picture-book set. Check out what's available near you, and designate some independent reading time every day. While the kids read, you can dive into

Be a tourist

Summer is a great time to explore your own backyard — the parks, museums and attractions you don't normally get to. Schedule a weekly "field trip" to someplace within an hour's ride or drive that you and/or your kids have never been before.

(This includes exotic new malls and movie theaters if you're craving air-conditioning.)

Swap

Set up a regular play date exchange with a friend: their place this Friday afternoon, your place the next. If you're so inclined, bring a bottle of wine or other treat for the host when you pick up your kids. Especially if yours, like mine, are, er ... "spirited." METRO

Pediatricians should check young kids for motor delays

Identifying children with delays and motor abnormalities will set them on a better trajectory. /THINKSTOCK

Health. A new clinical report says that the quicker the diagnosis, the better the outcome for children.

Doctors should regularly screen babies and young children for delays in motor skill development — including trouble sitting, standing and speaking — at well-child visits, pediatricians said Monday.

In a clinical report, an American Academy of Pediatrics panel said that diagnosing and treating those problems early on may ultimately improve kids' outlook and help families gain additional support.

"Identifying children with delays and motor abnormalities, theoretically or hopefully would set them on a better trajectory," said Meghann Lloyd, who studies motor development at the University of Ontario Institute of Technology in Oshawa, Canada.

Lloyd, who was not involved in the new report, called it "a really big step forward for the field."

Dr. Garey Noritz and colleagues on the AAP's neuromotor screening expert panel lay out the skills that a child should have developed by office visits at ages 9, 18, 30 and 48 months.

For example, a 9-month-old baby should be able to roll to both sides, sit well without support and grasp objects. At 18 months, that child should be able to walk, sit and stand on its own.

Pediatricians should also ask parents open-ended questions about their child's development and watch the child play for signs of delays or loss of motor skills at well-child visits, the panel said.

On a general exam, it recommended that doctors measure head size and look at children's muscle tone, reflexes and eye movements.

Cerebral palsy and muscular dystrophy are two of the most common motor-related diseases and could both be picked up and treated earlier than they typically are now, according to Noritz.

"We're hoping that people can get to a specialist more quickly and thus get diagnosed more quickly, but that primary care clinicians at the same time as they're looking for a diagnosis, will refer [kids] to therapy," he said. REUTERS

Milestones

18

At 18 months, a child should be able to walk, sit and stand on its own.

Motor skills

Parents can bring their children to an early movement program such as Kindergym to promote development of motor skills, Lloyd said, regardless of other treatments and whether or not they are delayed. Having poor motor skills in general "sets you on a trajectory for low levels of physical activity, which of course is related to obesity," she said.

"The prevention of these delays or the promotion of motor ability can actually impact your health for your lifespan."

STEVE SCHIRRIPA

The "Sopranos" actor talks about his book "Big Daddy Rules."

TOUGH LOVE

On "The Sopranos," Steve Schirripa played a hot-headed, loud-mouthed guy. As a father, he's pretty much that same guy. He wrote "Big Daddy Rules" as a love letter to his two daughters. "I guess I don't always tell them how I feel," he says. "I yell a lot. I'm pretty strict, and also I've got a lot of opinions, and I wanted to put them all together in a book."

What are the rules?

The first rule is, I make the rules. I'm your father, not your friend. But I'm the best friend you're ever going to have because nobody is going to care about you the way I care about you. The four greatest words in the world are "because I said so." That's why you can't go to the party where they're serving beer. Parents don't want to tell their kids "no" anymore.

What's the hardest part about raising girls?

A boy, you give them a ball, you give them a Lego, they're fascinated. Girls are smart, they're cunning, they're calculating. They bat their eyelashes, they manipulate you.

Quoted

"The first rule is, I make the rules."

Schirripa

Did you care whether you had a boy or a girl?

It didn't matter to me, as long as they were healthy. It was scary though, when my wife got pregnant. I was not prepared. I was a guy that went out a lot, I worked nights, I was living in Las Vegas. I thought my world would come to a stop.

What's an uncomfortable situation, as a dad?

My daughter dated a boy when she was 16, and I think I made a mistake there. I don't think she was emotionally ready. I was reluctant. I would not make that mistake again.

Do you really think you could have stopped her?

I hear what you're saying. I can't control everything they do, and I don't try to, but I want to be present whether I'm there or not. I want them to think, "What would my dad think about this decision I'm about to make?"

Were you strict with letting them watch TV?

I am still! I hate that reality crap. I saw them one day watching "The Jersey Shore" and I said I never want to see that again, ever. It's complete garbage. You think this is for real?

What's your best advice for a new dad?

I think the best thing is to be present. Get in there, get your hands dirty. Be involved. You know, in every movie, every TV show, the dad's an idiot. Don't be an idiot. Take charge, change a diaper, help.

Study. Kids' genes, environment affect sleep differently

Good sleep duration and quality are very important for your child's health. / THINKSTOCK

A new study based on pairs of Canadian twins suggests that genetics play a strong role in how long kids sleep at night, but their environment may be more important for afternoon naps.

Researchers compared sleep patterns for close to 500 sets of identical or fraternal twins. They found that especially as kids got older, environmental influences — which include when parents put kids in bed, for example — explained more and more of their napping differences.

"Even though the results do not explicitly state which are the environmental factors," says Sonia Brescianini, "researchers in the field think that familial habits at bed time, sleeping routines and in general sleep hygiene measures are for sure a means of improving sleep in children."

Brescianini, a researcher with the Italian Twin Register at Rome's Istituto

Superiore di Sanita, told Reuters that past research has also suggested a child's environment may be more important than genetics for daytime sleep habits.

By comparing sets of identical and fraternal twins, Dr. Jacques Montplaisir was able to determine how much of kids' sleep variation was due to genes — which are the same in identical twins — and how much to environmental factors.

But genes never explained more than about one-third of daytime nap length, the researchers reported. Family routines and other shared environmental influences, on the other hand, accounted for between 33 and 79 percent of whether or not twins were napping during the day, and for how long. That association became stronger as children got older and average nap length shortened. REUTERS

Quoted

"Good sleep duration and quality is very important for children's physical and mental health, because sleeping behavior has been associated with obesity, poor school performance and other behavioral disorders."

BREAKING 'FREE': HOW TO MAKE IT AS A FREELANCER

There are many paths to building a successful career — but for those who have the drive, it can be worth it to break free and try being a freelancer. In fact, Intuit, a website that helps guide small businesses, predicts that by 2020, 40 percent of America's workforce will be freelancers. ODesk, the world's largest online workplace, predicts that by 2020, one in three workers will be hired online — allowing him to work wherever and whenever he wants.

Based on a new study from my company and oDesk, we found that 72 percent of employees want to quit their traditional jobs to be entirely independent, and 61 percent say that they likely will within two years. We discovered that freedom is the top reason why they want to quit. They want to put the "free" in their career and become a freelancer. Here are three tips on how to freelance successfully.

Become an expert

Put all of your energy into becoming the top expert in your field so that people seek you out, and you can win new business. For instance, you could become a top Ruby on Rails programmer in your niche or an expert on

Re: "Senators who opposed Sandy bill accept disaster aid" (Metro, May 23) The real reason that Oklahoma's two Republican senators voted against the $60 billion supplemental appropriation bill that provided relief to victims of Hurricane Sandy was that this bill contained a lot of unnecessary pork barrel spending unrelated to Hurricane Sandy relief. These two senators are true fiscal conservatives who are against pork barrel spending, which our nation cannot afford with our record debt and deficits. Report the entire facts, or do not report

Peterson against gay marriage

Vikings running back

Adrian Peterson injected himself into a little controversy yesterday when he told SiriusXM Radio he did not support gay marriage. "To each his own, [but] I'm not with it," he said. "I have relatives who are gay. I'm not biased toward them. I still treat them the same. I love 'em. But again, I'm not with that. That's not something I believe in."

Girardi praises Mets' Harvey

Matt Harvey has an admirer in Joe Girardi.

"Just watching him on TV, he's impressive," Girardi said of Harvey prior to the start of the Subway Series. Harvey will start tonight's game against the Yankees at Citi Field.

The right-hander is 5-0 with a 1.93 ERA this season. Dating back to last July when he was called up from Triple-A, Harvey is 8-5 with a 2.30 ERA and 144 strikeouts in 129.1 innings.

"I actually watched his first start [a 3-1 win over the Diamondbacks in Arizona on July 26, 2012]," Girardi said. "I called my buddy — he's a Mets fan — and I told him, 'You have something to be excited about.' This kid's got a great arm. He's been impressive all year long. I've seen some of his games on TV. We'll get a chance to see him in person."

Girardi admitted he has dual purposes for watching Harvey's starts.

"The first time I watched [him] was because I [am] a fan of the game and have interest in New York baseball since I live here," Girardi said. "Now I watch games because I [knew] we were playing them fairly quickly." DENIS GORMAN

Richards big question mark on breakup day

NHL. The Rangers have the offseason to debate whether to amnesty the veteran center.

Brad Richards was the primary target for the Rangers in free agency two years ago. The center may be targeted by the organization this summer for an altogether different reason.

"I signed for longer than a year and a half," Richards said when he met with reporters at the Rangers' training facility yesterday for the final time in the 2013 season. "But I do understand what's going on."

Richards could be a candidate for an amnesty buyout this summer due to his play in the truncated 2013 season, the remaining term on his contract and the new collective bargaining agreement's salary cap benefit recapture system.

The 33-year-old was a healthy scratch for Games

4 and 5 of the Eastern Conference semifinals against the Bruins. He finished the playoffs with one goal and a minus-3 rating in 10 playoff games, and had been dropped to a fourth line with Chris Kreider and Arron Asham midway through the Washington series.

"As I said when I took him out of the lineup, I was not coaching the proper way, playing him on the fourth line," head coach John Tortorella said. "It just doesn't work. But I also could not put him in front of other people because [at the time] other people were playing better."

The Rangers have $13.5 million in available cap room right now, but by amnestying Richards, the Rangers would have $20.1 million in cap room.

"I signed here to be a Ranger for a lot longer than a year and a half," Richards said. "So I hope to do that."

Money men

Signed to a nine-year, $60 million free agent deal in July 2011, Richards has seven years and $36 million left on his deal, and is a $6.67 million cap hit through the 2019-20 season. He is scheduled to make $9 million next season. The team has a surplus of talent they need to re-sign.

- The team has restricted free agents Ryan McDonagh, Derek Stepan, Mats Zuccarello and Carl Hagelin to re-sign this offseason.

"It just wasn't a good season," Richards said as the Rangers packed up their lockers for the offseason yesterday. / NHL, GETTY IMAGES

Hermann, left, told ESPN she was assured by Rutgers President Robert Barchi, right, she would not be fired over the report of abuse toward former players. / GETTY IMAGES

NJ senator calls for old AD back

Rutgers. The new athletic director is stirring up a familiar scandal.

New Jersey state Sen. Ray Lesniak saw this coming.

In the latest scandal to hit Rutgers, reports surfaced alleging new athletic director Julie Hermann directed abuse toward players as head volleyball coach at Tennessee in the 1990s, which caused her to resign. According to reports, Rutgers never vetted Hermann about this incident when they decided to hire her to replace Tim Perneti as athletic director.

Perneti was forced to resign April 6 after the firing of head basketball coach Mike Rice. Perneti chose to suspend Rice in December after a video of him berating players came to light. When ESPN aired the tape in April, Rice was fired.

"First of all, [Perneti] followed university procedures — human resource and legal procedures that were in place that were inadequate to deal with this situation," Lesniak, who represents the 20th district, told Metro yesterday. "He was made the scapegoat rather than the institution taking responsibility."

Lesniak graduated from Rutgers with a degree in economics and is a men's basketball season ticket holder. "When you make someone a scapegoat, like [Rutgers] President Rob Barchi did, bad things happen and bad things did happen with the hiring of an athletic director who has a very difficult past of abuse of players. The right thing to do is to correct this thing, admit you made a mistake, that it is wrong to make a scapegoat for an institutional problem and bring back Tim Perneti and move on from there."

Perneti would not speak on the record, but a high-ranking source said the university was onboard with Perneti's decision last December.

"Everyone was onboard with the suspension, including the Committee for Athletics, which included several members of the Board of Governors, and the president of the university to the point that Perneti was effusively praised in December board meetings for his handling of the situation by all parties," the source said.

Legal Notices

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK COUNTY OF QUEENS
Anzhelika Davidova, Plaintiff - against -
Artur Yussupov,
Defendant.

This action is brought in the County of QUEENS because said County is the County where the Plaintiff resides.

ACTION FOR A DIVORCE
YOU ARE HEREBY SUMMONED AND REQUIRED TO RESPOND TO THIS SUMMONS and to the requests for relief made by the Plaintiff by serving a written Notice of Appearance on the Plaintiff's attorney, at the address stated below.

If this Summons with Notice was served upon you within the State of New York by personal delivery, you must respond WITHIN 20 DAYS after service, exclusive of the day of service. If this Summons with Notice was not personally delivered to you within the State of New York you must respond WITHIN 30 DAYS after service is complete in accordance with the requirements of the Civil Practice Law and Rules.

THE NATURE OF THIS ACTION IS TO OBTAIN A JUDGMENT OF DIVORCE, DISSOLVING THE MARRIAGE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT.
THIS ACTION FOR DIVORCE IS BASED UPON THE FOLLOWING GROUNDS:
Abandonment of the Plaintiff by the Defendant for a period of more than one (1) year, pursuant to Domestic Relations Law Section 170(2).

THE RELIEF SOUGHT BY THE PLAINTIFF IN THIS ACTION IS A JUDGMENT DIVORCING THE PARTIES AND DISSOLVING THE MARITAL RELATIONSHIP WHICH HAS HERETOFORE EXISTED.
PLAINTIFF ALSO REQUESTS THAT SUCH JUDGMENT GRANT THE FOLLOWING ITEMS OF ADDITIONAL AND ANCILLARY RELIEF:

1. Awarding Plaintiff custody of the unemancipated child of the marriage.
2. Awarding Plaintiff child support, including, but not limited to, a periodic payment, and, where appropriate, a child care allowance, health care allowance, and allowance for private and/or college educational expenses.
3. Granting each party the right to resume the use of any maiden name or other pre-marriage surname.
4. Awarding Plaintiff such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and proper, together with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Pursuant to Domestic Relations Law § 255, effective October 9, 2009, notice is hereby given that once the judgment of divorce is signed, a party hereto may or may not be eligible to be covered under the other party's health insurance plan, depending on the terms of the plan.
NOTICE is hereby provided of the automatic orders in this matrimonial action pursuant to Domestic Relations Law § 236(B)(2)(b):

With respect to matrimonial actions commenced on or after September 1, 2009, the automatic orders shall be binding on the plaintiff in a matrimonial action immediately upon the filing of the summons, or summons and complaint, and upon the defendant immediately upon the service of the automatic orders with the summons. The automatic orders shall remain in full force and effect during the pendency of the action, unless terminated, modified or amended by further order of the court upon motion of either of the parties or upon written agreement between the parties duly executed and acknowledged.

- (1) Neither party shall sell, transfer, encumber, conceal, assign, remove or in any way dispose of, without the consent of the other party in writing, or by order of the court, any property (including, but not limited to, real estate, personal property, cash accounts, stocks, mutual funds, bank accounts, cars and boats) individually or jointly held by the parties, except in the usual course of business, for customary and usual household expenses or for reasonable attorney's fees in connection with this action.
- (2) Neither party shall transfer, encumber, assign, remove, withdraw or in any way dispose of any tax deferred funds, stocks or other assets held in any individual retirement accounts, 401K accounts, profit sharing plans, Keogh accounts, or any other pension or retirement account, and the parties shall further refrain from applying for or requesting the payment of retirement benefits or annuity payments of any kind, without the consent of the other party in writing, or upon further order of the court.
- (3) Neither party shall incur unreasonable debts hereafter, including, but not limited to further borrowing against any credit line secured by the family residence, further encumbering any assets, or unreasonably using credit cards or cash advances against credit cards, except in the usual course of business or for customary or usual household expenses, or for reasonable attorney's fees in connection with this action.
- (4) Neither party shall cause the other party or the children of the marriage to be removed from any existing medical, hospital and dental insurance coverage, and each party shall maintain the existing medical, hospital and dental insurance coverage in full force and effect.
- (5) Neither party shall change the beneficiaries of any existing life insurance policies, and each party shall maintain the existing life insurance, automobile insurance, homeowners and renters insurance policies in full force and effect.

IN THE EVENT THAT YOU FAIL TO APPEAR OR ANSWER, JUDGMENT WILL BE TAKEN AGAINST YOU, by default, for the relief demanded in this Summons with Notice.
Dated: August 3, 2012

Yours, etc.,

NOTICE CONCERNING CONTINUATION OF HEALTH CARE COVERAGE
(Required by Section 255(1) of the Domestic Relations Law) PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that once a judgment of divorce is signed in this action, both you and your spouse may or may not continue to be eligible for coverage under each other's health insurance plan, depending on the terms of the plan.
